NS Welcomes Meri

During her stay in the U.S., Meri Pfefer, NS foreign exchange student from Brazil, lived with Mr. and Mrs. Foster J. Aufliff and their daughter, Mary Lou. Arriving in January, Meri became accustomed to the cold weather of Iowa, the long school day and the life and customs of the North American people.

North Scott students enjoyed Meri's companionship and benefited from her conversation.

Homecoming festivities officially began on Thursday evening with the bonfire and snake dance through Eldridge. Queen Beverly Crane was crowned at the climax of the pep aud on Friday afternoon, October sixth. The queen and court were presented at half time of the Morrison-North Scott football game, and Bev was presented a bouquet of roses by Mr. Fischer (above). The Mean' provided music for the victory dance following the game.

The stranger walked in, ordered his funeral and died, much to the dismay of the mortician and his family.

Mr. Craig and the Dancer place the body of Everett George in a casket.

"Murder" proves to be an interesting topic of conversation for Lawyer Craig, Norman Clark and Carla George.

While Officer Corey looks on, Carla George and Norman Clark die silently.

NS Audience Views

"Mouse That Roared"

North Scott audiences were delighted with the spring presentation of "The Mouse That Roared." Along with the dramatic problems inherent in the presentation of a satire, the drama staff also faced difficulties with costumes and staging. However, the problems were solved and the students presented an admirable sophisticated satire.

North Scott Invents Swing Phonic

"Swingphonic Invention", the first pop music show presented by the vocal and instrumental departments of North Scott High School, premiered on February 17, 1968. Nearly one hundred students participated in the program.

ACADEMICS

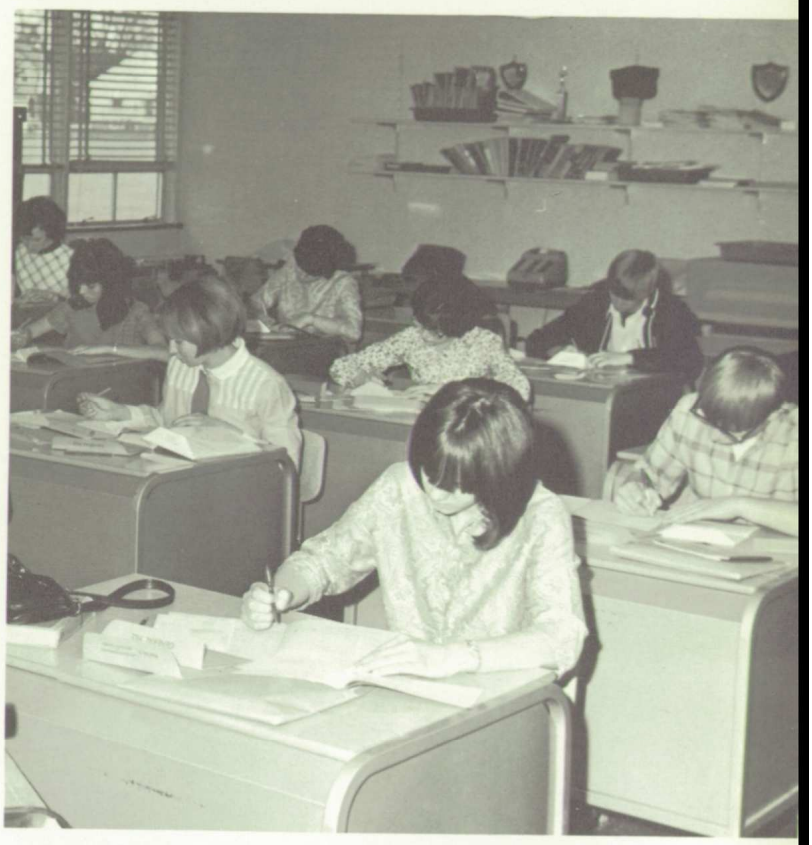

Business

Business Courses at NS are geared to give the student required skills in Secretarial Work as well as practical experience. Once students have attained the needed skills they are eligible to participate in Workshop. Accuracy and efficiency are important essentials in qualifying for the Workshop experience.

Students Gain Experience

Workshop members pause for a picture: J. Richlen, D. McLaughlin, D. Scott, L. McCubbin, M. Badtram, S. Hallman, M. Baetke, C. Scherer, P. Oster, S. Hellman, J. Grabbe, L. Kunde, A. Goettsch, E. Buckley, M. Ganzer, and B. Crane.

English Dept. Stresses Expression

Correct oral and written expression, an appreciation of literature and a knowledge of authors both past and present are goals of the English department. Achievement of these goals is attained through written assignments, class discussion, oral reports based on the study of novels and works of various literary periods.

Art Students Display Wares

Art students study the techniques and styles of various artists, occasionally copying a masterpiece to gain experience in using various techniques. Creativity and initiative are encouraged in all of the art classes and students display their products at the annual art show in the spring.

Future Homemakers Benefit from Study

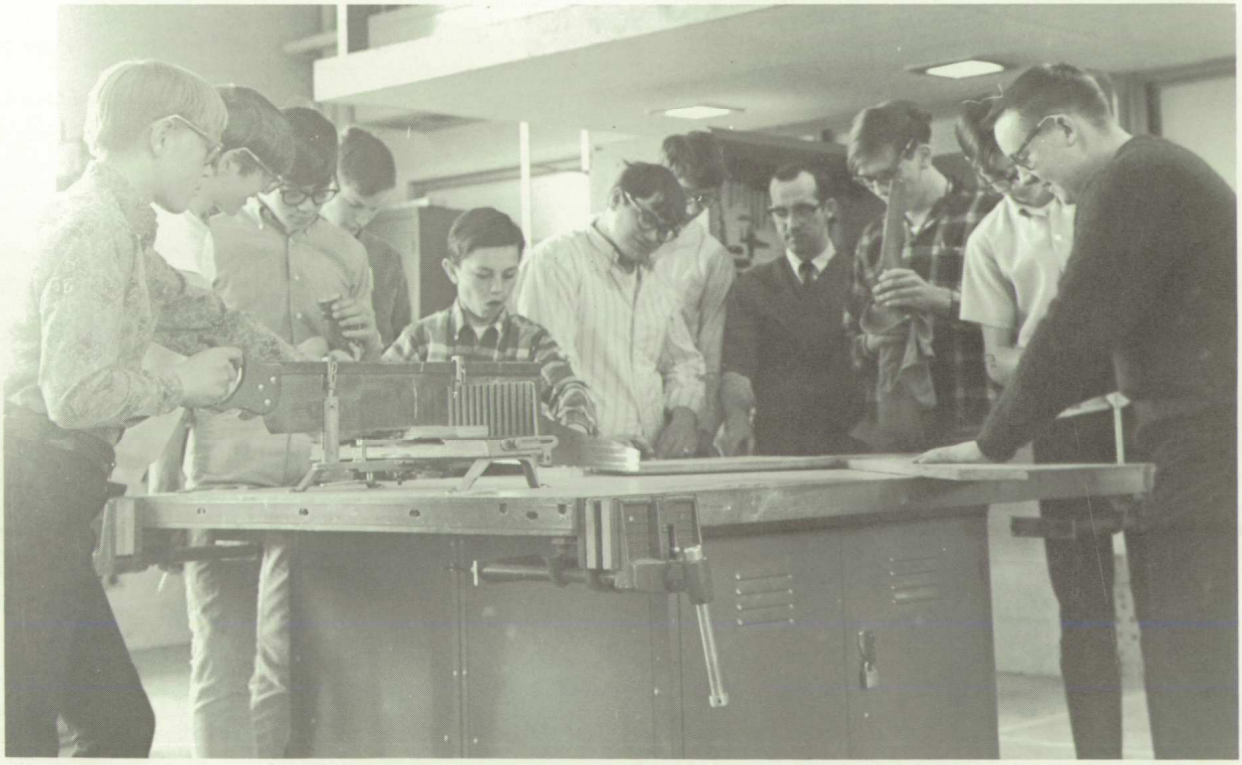

Given the opportunity to create delicious dishes and creative clothing, the home economics students "learn by doing." Homemaking skills quickly develop through experience and patience.

Students Undertake

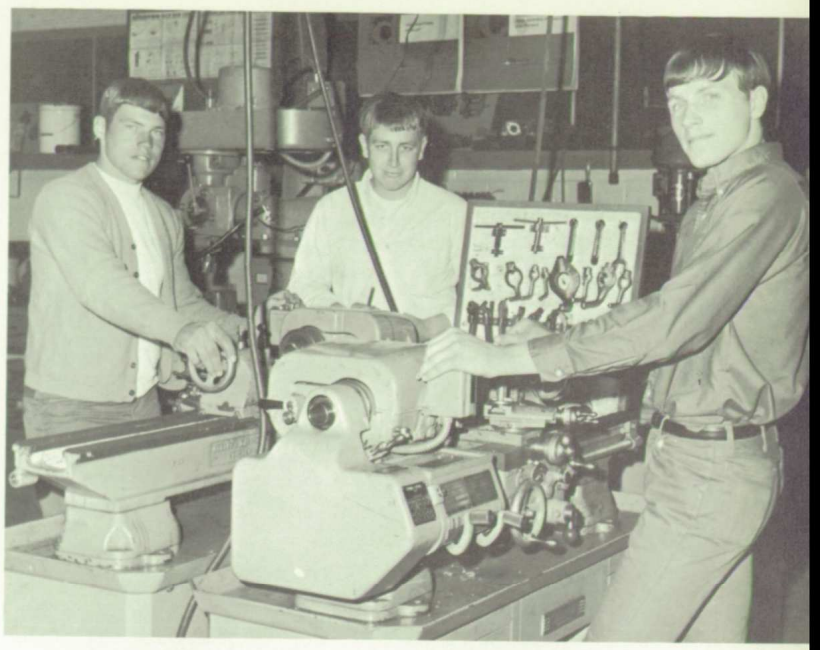

Shop Projects

Organization, skill and craftsmanship are stressed in the shop courses. After learning basic procedures and safety measures, the students undertake projects, both assigned and voluntary.

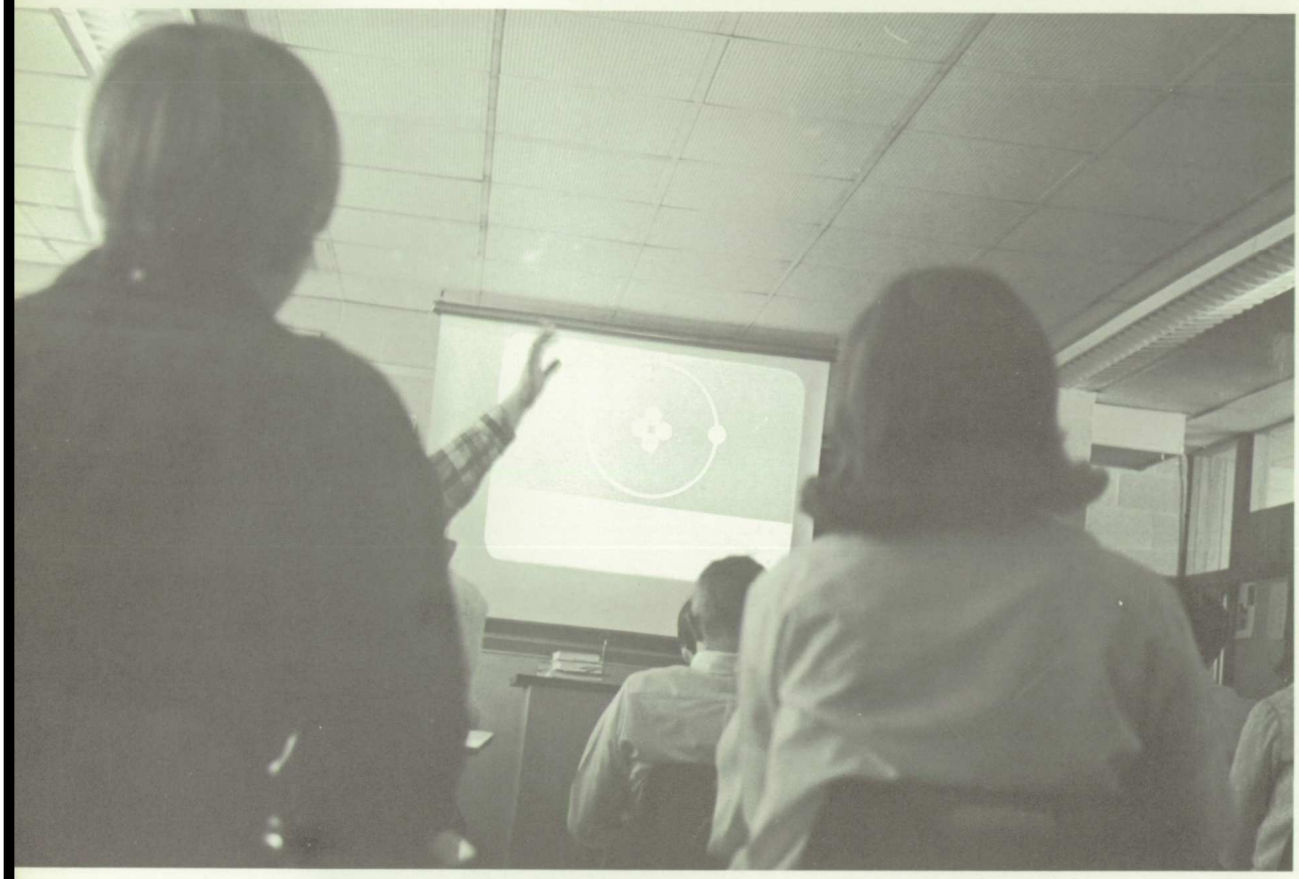

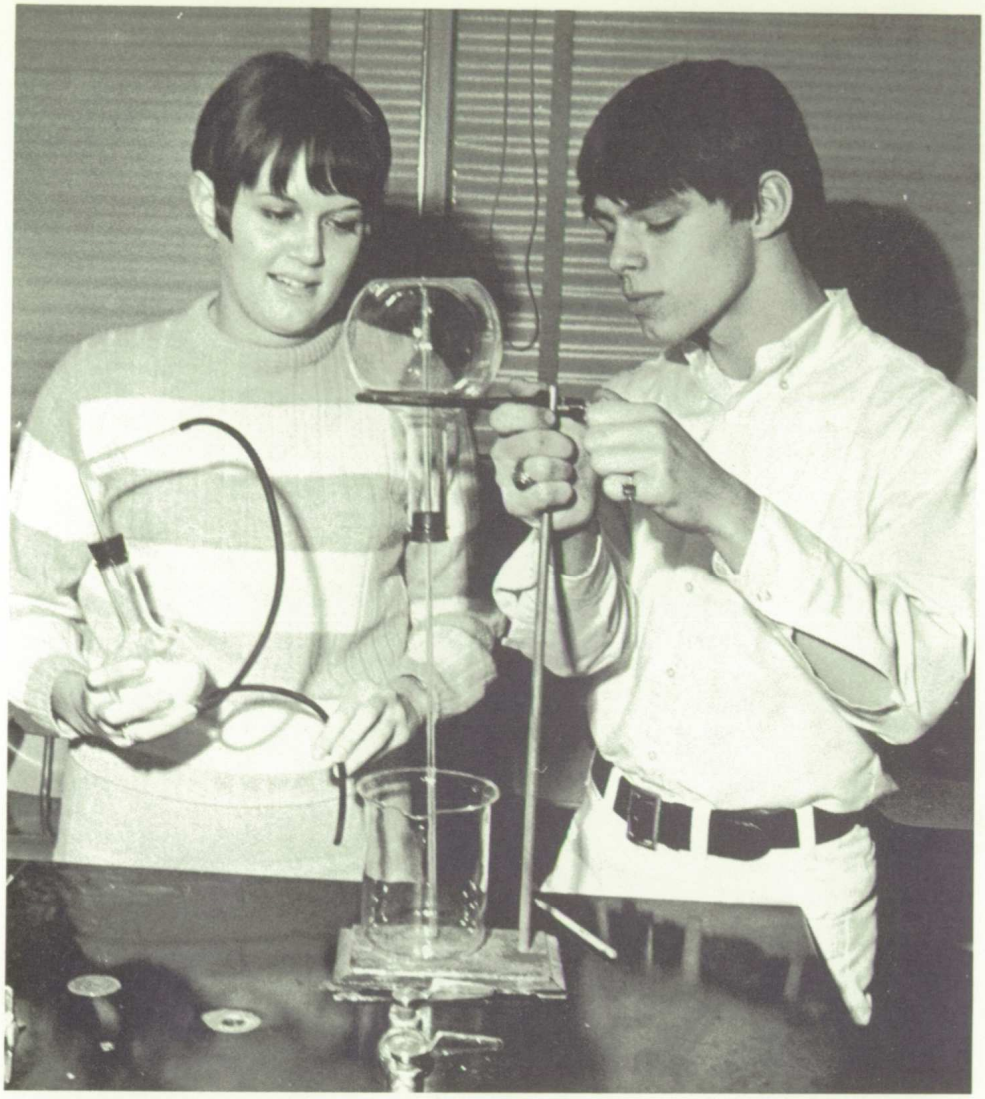

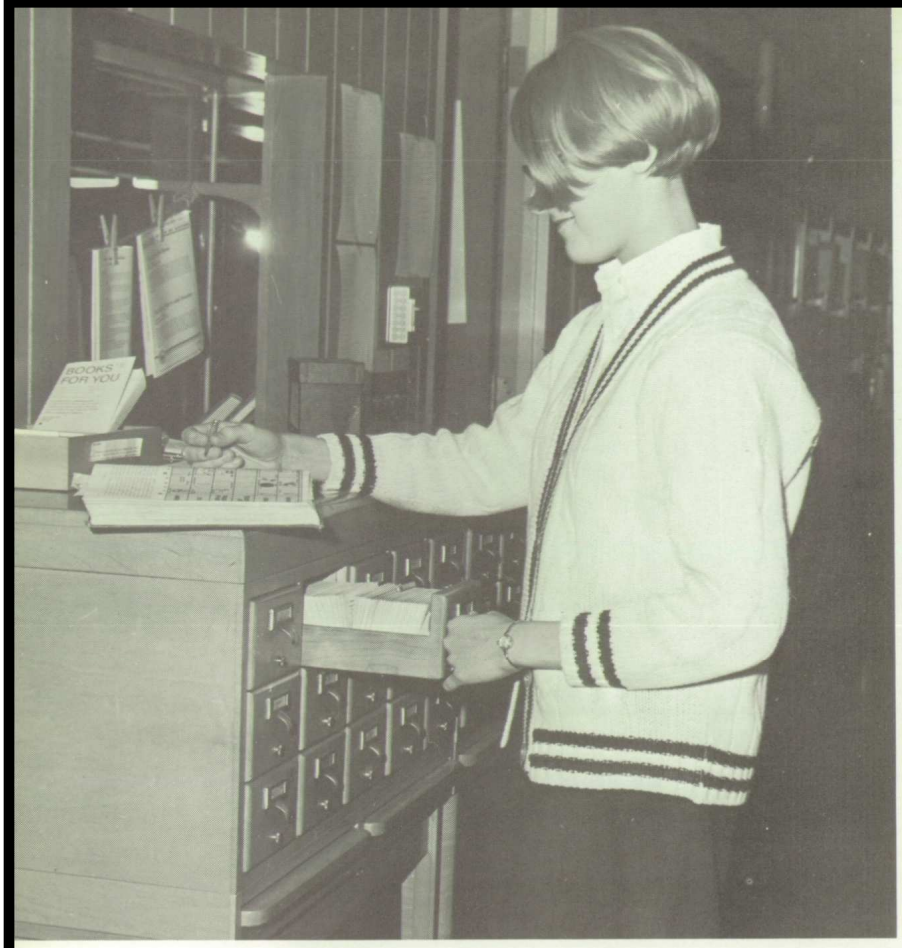

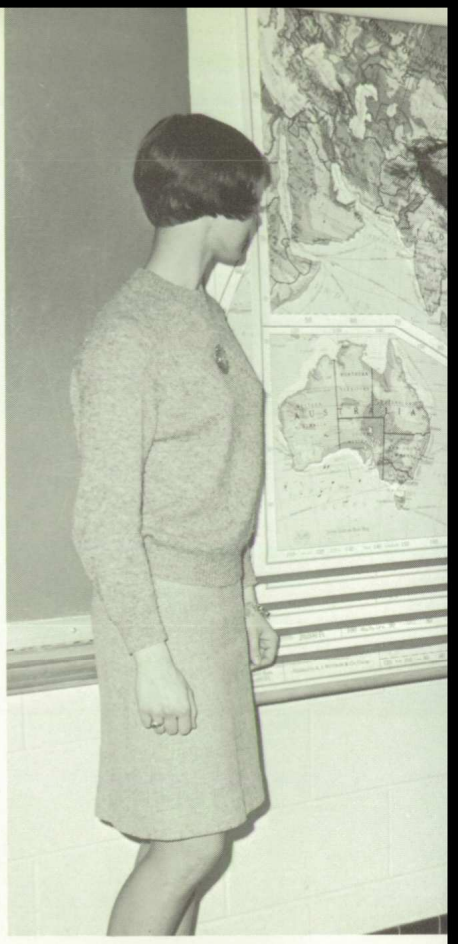

Students Explore Mysteries of Life

Progressing from general courses the science students are able to advance into specialized study such as Biology, Chemistry, Bio-Chemistry, and Physics. Lectures are combined with lab work to enable the students to learn by doing.

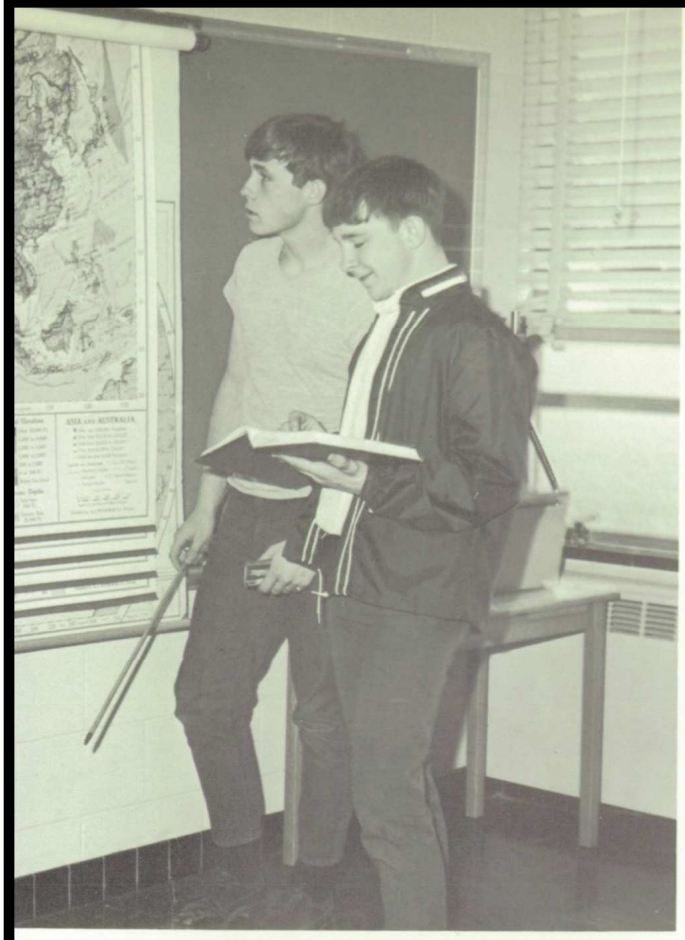

Social Science Dept. Initiates

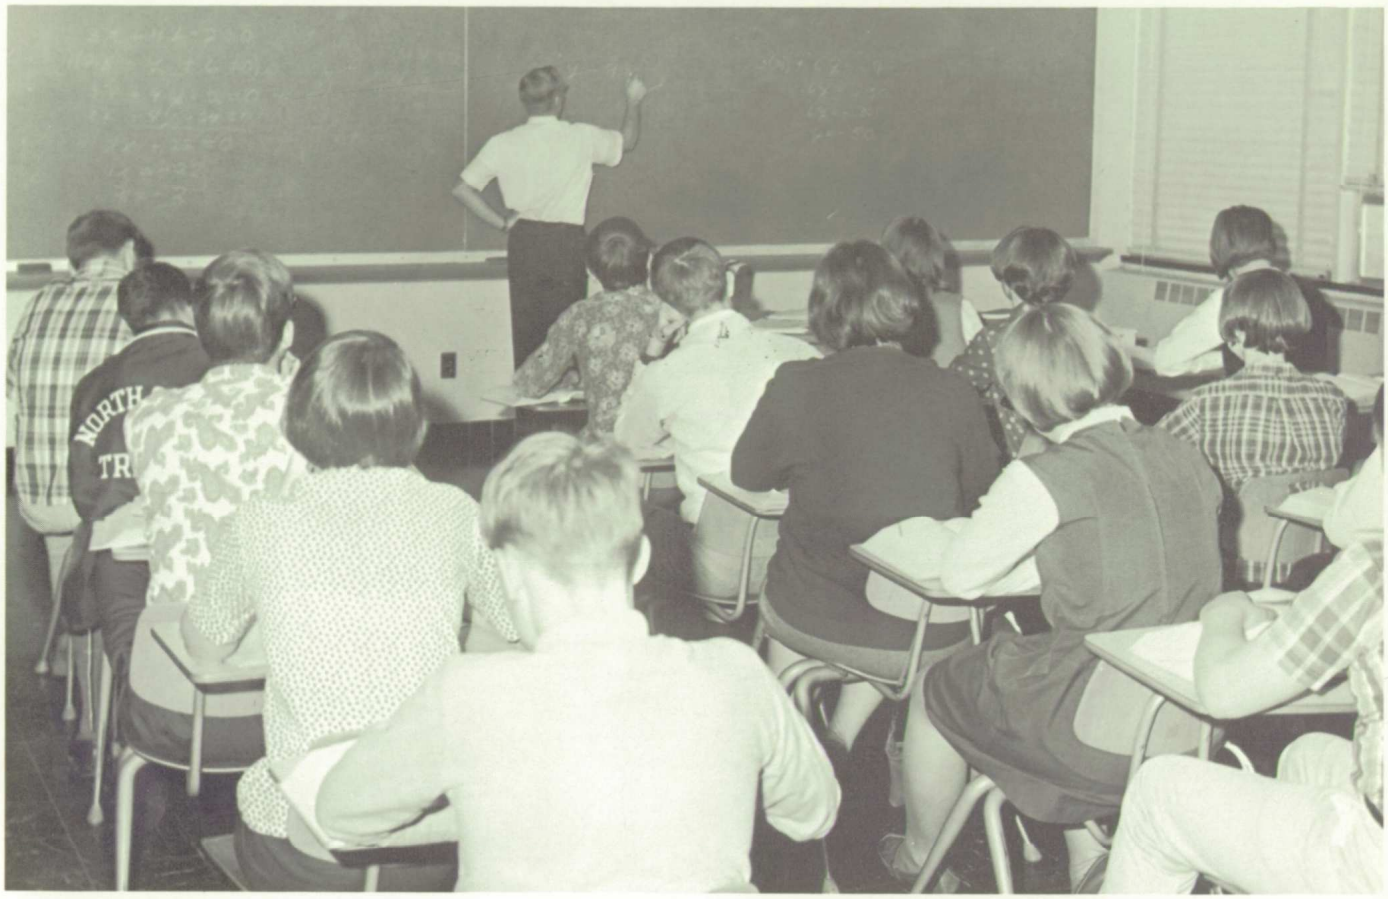

Individual Study Program

The Social Science department encourages individual and group work as well as class participation. Newly initiated this year was the Individual Study Program. After choosing a topic, students in the program were released from class for library research. They would meet before and after school with their instructors to discuss problems, report on their progress and present their completed research papers.

Math Students Examine Principles, Approaches

Senior high math courses help develop further understanding of the math principles. The courses, varying from General Math to Senior Math, show the different approaches to mathematics which can be studied.

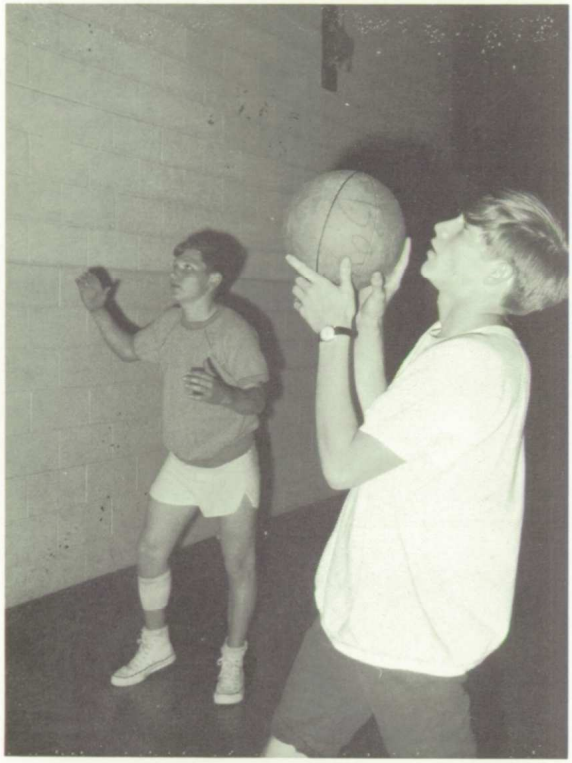

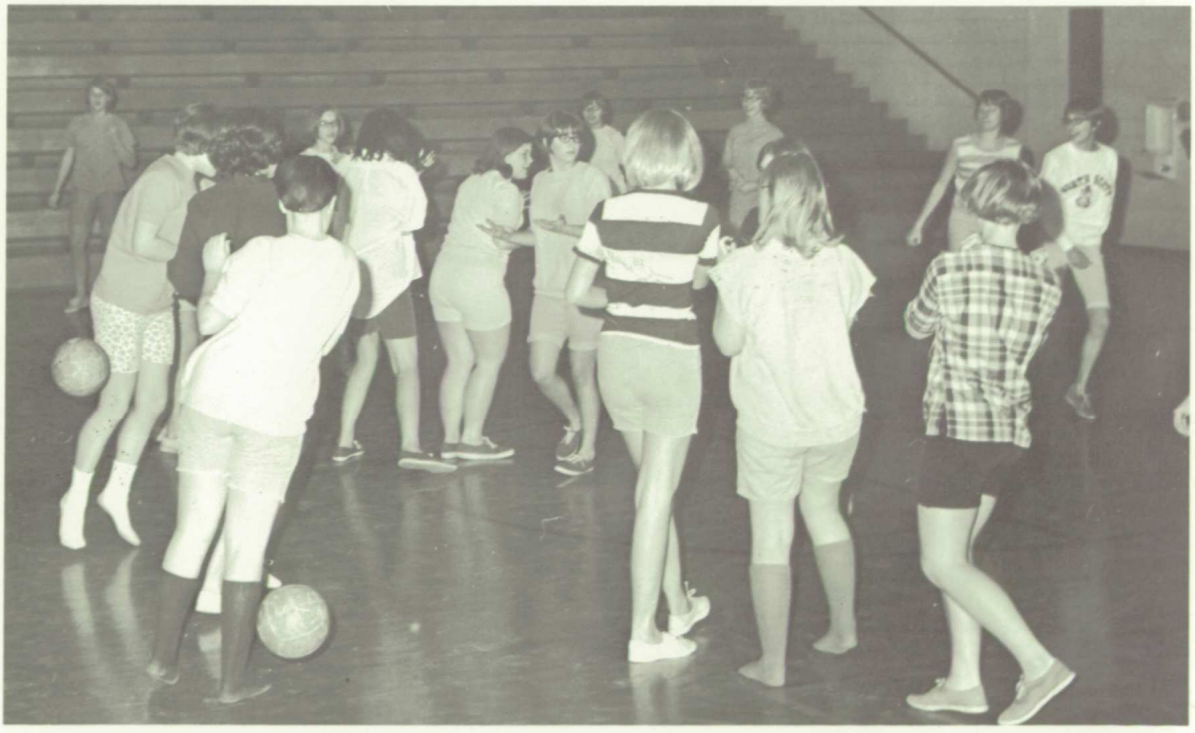

P.E. Programs Stress Student Physical Fitness

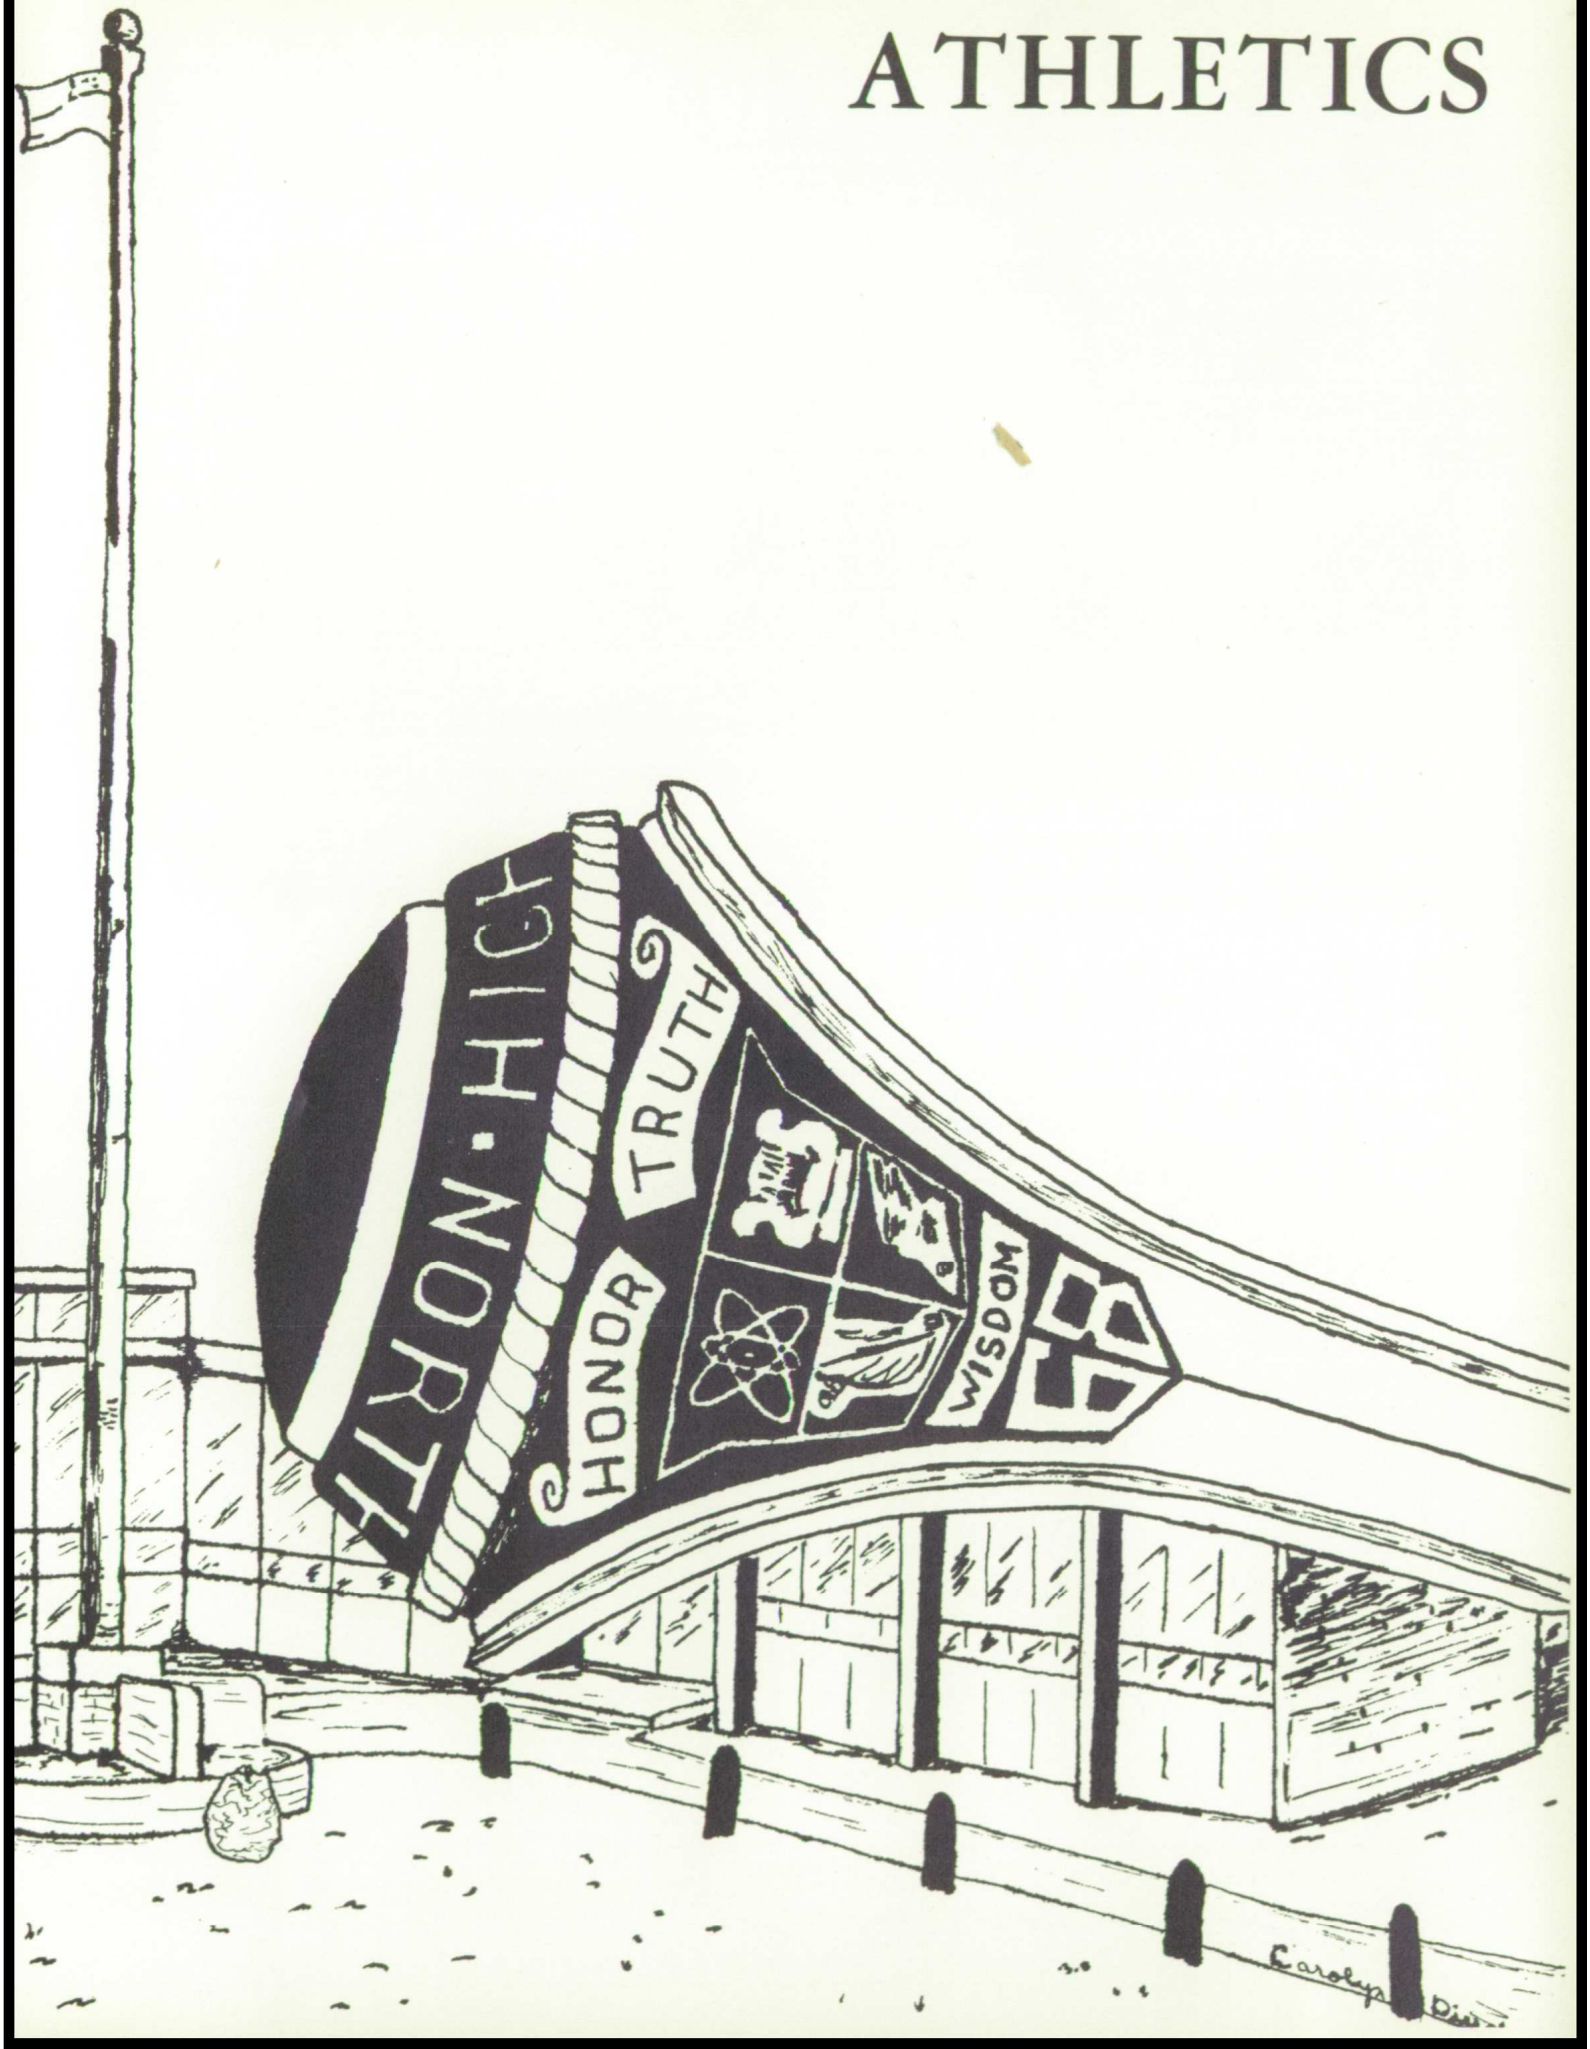

The Physical Education program for both girls and boys includes team sports such as basketball, baseball and volleyball. Individual stunts and tumbling are also included in the program which is generally directed toward physical fitness.
